The Latin-American Corporation has been organized under the laws of Maine with a capital of $1,000,000 as a subsidiary of the American International Corporation, to investigate and handle propositions from the Latin-American quarter. Charles A. Stone, Pres. of the American International Corporation, is Pres. o fthis corporation. R. P. Tinsley, Treas. of the American International, will be its Treas., and its directors, so far as announced, are Mr. Stone, Mr. Tinsley, W. S. Kies, P. W. Henry and Thomas W. Streeter. The organization will include an expert engineering and construction staff, and will be equipped not only for construction but for the operation of acquired properties. This corporation has under consideration numerous specific projects, including the consolidation and rehabilitation of existing tram lines, the construction of public works, including water-supply systems, sewerage systems and harbor developments, and the construction and development of railways. As far as possible it will be the policy of the new corporation to retain a substantial permanent interest in the projects which it undertakes, so that it will participate in future earnings. It will thoroughly investigate engineering and construction propositions presented to it and will tender its services to South American governments and municipalities in planning public works. Much of the work in prospect in South America will be financed through issues of government or municipal securities. Though the intrinsic value of these securities is not generally known to the American investor, and hence their market in this country is now limited, the new corporation is in possession of exact information regarding them, and in entering into contracts for the various projects which it has under consideration is in a position to assure itself of the entire safety of the securities which it accepts in payment and for their amortization out of earnings. It will be the policy of the American International Corporation to make the securities which it so receives the basis for its own issues of debentures. The American investor will thus be secured by the paid-up capital of the corporation in addition to the obligations that have been accepted by the corporation. The Latin-American Corporation will have headquarters for its South American activities at Buenos Ayres, and the staff for that office sailed from New York recently. One of the members of this party is Dr. R. P. Strong, who had charge of the Red Cross relief organization which stamped out typhus fever in Servia last year. Dr. Strong is an adviser upon sanitary work.

The John T. Walbridge Engineering Co., Chicago, Ill., announces the removal of its offices to 1101 Tower Bldg., 6 North Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Wallace & Tiernan Co., Inc., has moved into its new factory at 137 Center St., New York, where it will have over three times its present floor space and much beter facilities for handling its business.
